15th Annual Sport Related Concussion and Spine Injury Conference
MAY 11, 2018 | Joseph B. Martin Center, Boston, MA

Course Overview: Honored guests and national experts from Boston Children's Hospital Brain Injury Center and Harvard Medical School will present key features in the diagnosis and management of the full spectrum of concussion, traumatic brain and spinal cord injury, with an emphasis on safely returning athletes to school and sports.

The one day course will focus on the basic science and clinical management of sport related concussion (SRC) and spinal cord injury. Topics will address initial clinical and radiographic evaluation, acute and chronic treatment, long-term implications of head or spine injury, and more.

Don't wait, early bird rates end 3/31/2018. Register now >>

Boston Doctors Try to Save Girl's Vision Using New Cancer Treatment

WBZ-TV channel 4 reports on 3-year-old Dania, who was diagnosed with retinoblastoma, or cancer of the eye. Rather than use more traditional treatment methods – removal of the eye or systemic chemotherapy – her family is opting for a different approach: intra-arterial chemotherapy, which treats retinoblastoma with a precise dose of chemotherapy administered directly into the artery feeding the tumor.
